

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Ken Jun Meng,

Plaintiff,

v.

Bank of America, N.A. et al,

Defendants.

Case No. 5:13-cv-02369-R (DTBx)

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR RECUSAL OF JUDGE MANUEL REAL

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter comes before the Court on Plaintiff's Motion to Recuse Judge Manuel Real pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 144 and 455(a). See General Order 08-05 § 4.0. Satisfied that the circumstances requiring disqualification do not exist here, the Court DENIES the Motion.

II. FACTUAL SUMMARY

On February 22, 2012 the Defendant in the matter of Ken Jun Meng v. Bank of America NA, Case number 5:12-cv-00268-R-DTB removed the case from Riverside Superior Court to this court. [DE 1]. The suit sought to redress wrongs Plaintiff

1 perceived were visited upon him in connection with the foreclosure of the mortgage
2 on his home. On February 29, 2012 Defendant Bank of America filed a motion to 3 dismiss the Second Amended Complaint. [7] That motion was briefed, argued and
4 ultimately granted on April 10, 2012 [15].

7 On April 26, 2012 Plaintiff filed a Motion to “Vacate Void Judgment” arguing all
8 manner of misconduct by Judge Real, including treason, in dismissing the case. The 9 court construed the motion as one for reconsideration, and then denied it on the 10 grounds that it failed to satisfy any of the bases for granting a motion for 11 reconsideration. [25].
12

13
14 Undaunted, Plaintiff filed the instant case on December 26, 2013, three years
15 after the foreclosure, in the transparent attempt to continue the fight, but before a
16 different judge. Again, Bank of America is named as a defendant. [1]. Once again,
17 the defendants filed a motion to dismiss, this time on res judicata and collateral
18 estoppel grounds, as well as others. [4].
19

21 Plaintiff’s blatant “judge shopping” ploy worked temporarily. Initially the case
22 was randomly assigned to Judge Audrey B. Collins. On January 9, 2014 the matter
23 was reassigned to Judge Real, for the reason that the instant matter “[a]rise[s] from 24 the same or closely related transactions, happenings or events; [] [c]all[s] for 25 determination of the same or substantially related or similar questions of law and fact;
26
27
28

1 and [f]or other reasons would entail substantial duplication of labor if heard by different
2 judges.”

3 4 III LEGAL STANDARD

5 A judge “shall disqualify himself in any proceeding in which his impartiality
6 might reasonably be questioned” and in proceedings in which “he has a personal
7 bias or prejudice concerning a party, or personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary
8 facts concerning the proceeding.” 28 U.S.C. §§ 144 and 455(a) & (b) (1) governs
9 motions to disqualify. The standard for recusal is the same under both sections.
10
11

12 The Ninth Circuit has articulated the standard for disqualification as follows:
13

15 First, judicial rulings alone almost never constitute a valid basis
16 for a bias or partiality motion. In and of themselves ... they 17 cannot possibly show reliance upon an extrajudicial source....
18 Second, opinions formed by the judge on the basis of facts
19 introduced or events occurring in the course of the current
20 proceedings, or of prior proceedings, do not constitute a basis
21 for a bias or partiality motion unless they display a deep-
22 seated favoritism or antagonism that would make fair
23 judgment impossible. Thus, judicial remarks during the course
24 of a trial that are critical or disapproving of, or even hostile to,
25 counsel, the parties, or their cases, ordinarily do not support
26 a bias or partiality challenge. They may do so if they reveal an 27 opinion that derives from an extrajudicial source; and they 28 will do so if they reveal such a high degree of favoritism or antagonism as to make fair judgment impossible.

1 Pesnell v. Arsenault, 543 F.3d 1038, 1044 (9thCir. 2008) (quoting Liteky v. United
2 States, 510 U.S. 540, 555 (1994). At bottom, the question is “whether a reasonable
3 person with knowledge of all the facts would conclude that the judge’s impartiality
4 might reasonably be questioned.” United States v. Johnson, 610 F. 3d 1138, 1147
5 (9th Cir. 2010) (internal quotation marks omitted.) ““Judicial ruling alone almost 6 never constitute a valid basis for a bias or partiality motion.”” United States v.
7 Studley, 783 F.2d 934, 939 (9th Cir. 1986). Plaintiff’s recusal motion is grounded
8 entirely in Judge Real’s rulings. Indeed, Plaintiff offers to withdraw this motion is 9 Judge Real will reconsider his ruling in the earlier case (12-268 R) (Mot. p. 6:5-10)

14 IV DISCUSSION

16 The reassignment of this case back to Judge Real’s court prompted Plaintiff’s
17 Motion for Recusal. Plaintiff is apparently familiar with the basis for disqualification
18 of a judge, for indeed he has cited them along with case authority. What is woefully
19 absent, however, are “facts” to support the conclusory assertions that Judge Real is 20 biased for or against one party or the other, or that one familiar with the facts would 21 conclude that Judge Real’s impartiality could reasonably be questioned. There is but
22 a single example of conduct by Judge Real which Plaintiff relies upon to challenge
23 Judge Real’s ability to sit as a fair and impartial jurist on this case.
25
26
27
28

1 Plaintiff complains that he was not given an opportunity to argue orally at
2 the hearing on the motion to dismiss. There was no argument by the moving party;
3 therefore there was nothing for Plaintiff to rebut. He had filed written opposition,
4 albeit late, therefore he cannot make the argument that he was denied due process
5 of law. Plaintiff does not argue that he would have raised additional legal arguments
6 that were not in his brief. Indeed, courts expect and require that all relevant 7 arguments be presented in writing before the hearing, to permit the court to give
8 careful consideration of same in rendering a decision.

11
12
13 There is no requirement that a judge permit the parties to argue motions.
14 More often than not, motions are decided on the papers without a hearing. (Fed. R.
15 Civ. P 78; L.R. 7-15.) There is therefore nothing unusual in a judge deciding a motion 16 without hearing oral arguments from counsel, which all too often are a repetition of 17 matters already addressed in their papers.
18

20 Plaintiff also complains that he was “kicked out from the court without saying
21 anything.” (Mot. at p. 2:27-28.). Pages 5-7 of the transcript of the hearing, attached
22 to Plaintiff’s motion papers tell the complete story. Plaintiff fails to note that Judge
23 Real gave a detailed explanation of why each cause of action was being dismissed, all
24 the while being interrupted by plaintiff improperly “objecting”. Plaintiff also fails to 25 note that after Judge Real explained why he was dismissing each and every cause of 26
27
28

1 action, his clerk called the next case, yet Plaintiff continued to defiantly stand at the
2 lectern. In fact, the Clerk called the next case four times and Plaintiff would not
3 remove himself from the lectern. Again, Judge Real advised Plaintiff that his case
4 was dismissed and he should remove himself from the lectern. He repeated that
5 instruction four times. Twice that instruction included the admonition that if he did
6 not remove himself, he would be removed.

10 There is no question that a judge is in charge of the proceedings in his or 11 her court, and has the right to employ effective methods of insuring court decorum
12 and dignity. (Corpus Juris Secundum §150.) Nothing more that the proper exercise of 13 judicial authority to prevent the disruption of the orderly administration of justice is 14 evidenced here
15
16

17 V. CONCLUSION

18

19 Plaintiff complains that he has been denied his day in court. (See Mot. at 20 p. 2:12.) The Court disagrees. He has had more than his day in court. He has used 21 and abused scarce judicial resources simply because he cannot accept decisions of the 22 court in which he disagrees. His remedy under such circumstances is to file an appeal
23 to a reviewing court. It is improper to refile new lawsuits to redress the same 24 grievances in the hopes of it being assigned to a different judge with the expectation of
26
27
28

1 a different result. Plaintiff is cautioned that a reoccurrence of that conduct will result
2 in the imposition of monetary sanctions.

4 The Motion for Recusal of Judge Manuel Real is DENIED.
